This-N-That

Veterans Affairs has been working on expanded community care rules for Veterans' medical appointments since last summer, when Congress approved the VA Mission Act. Details of that work are expected to be released in early 2019, and a full set of new regulations is scheduled to be released in early spring.

Among other priorities, the legislation mandated a retooling of the department's policies for Veterans seeking private-sector care, a massive undertaking that supporters have hailed as giving more flexibility and freedom to Veterans who face long lines at VA hospitals and clinics.

Democrats, including House members who will be taking control of the chamber this year, have promised intense oversight into the new outside care rules, to ensure they aren't written to siphon off needed federal resources to private businesses.

In regard to Democrats taking control, I have a ton of things I'd say about this but I will remain silent for now and do my best to remain objective, wait and see.

The OIG had found that there were millions of dollars that had been ear marked for suicide prevention had gone unused, and so far I have found absolutely NO explanation for this.

What matters to me most is providing care for all Veterans and maintaining continuity in care nationwide which we are sorely lacking.

When it comes to our Veterans and Military and spending, if every state in the country were to adhere to federal law on immigration, there would be no question as to funding being available.

If all those here illegally were deported, pulled off the welfare rolls, that would provide an estimated $850 Billion dollars a year of funding that could seriously be put to far better use, our Veterans and American citizens.

For years now, many of our lower ranking military families have had to rely on Welfare, HUD, Food Stamps, etc. but the Government has made it more and more difficult for them to even be approved. But those funds are always available and almost immediately granted to those who come here illegally.

I'm sure I could debate this to no end with many, but the point is we all need to band together, speak out a hell of a lot this year. We need to make this the year of the Veteran.

Get as many bills approved and signed into law as is humanly possible, and it all begins with you!

The key is to make things go viral such as we tried to do last year and we will continue to do this year with Blue Water Navy Veterans.

And how you make things go viral, if you have a social media page(s), post all the information there, then copy and paste into an E-Mail and send to your entire address book and ask all friends and family to please make the calls, click on the links to send the pre-written letters to members of Congress, and make all the calls.

Even if you don't think your rep listens to you, even if you don't agree with their politics, please, just make the calls, send the letters, and if you have fax capabilities, fax them too!

The more people involved, the more noise we make, the more attention we will get.

This month is blood donor month, so if you're able to give blood, please, check with your local VA Hospital and see what their dates of donation are and give blood. You never know whose life you will be saving. Maybe even your own!

On behalf of our Volunteers nationwide and myself, we wish you and your family good health and a safe and Happy New Year!

Respectfully,

Jim Davis

Student veterans CEO calls on veterans to fill America's
'leadership deficit'

Jared Lyon, a Navy veteran and CEO of Student Veterans of America, recently addressed a crowd of about 2,300 people at the group's national convention in Orlando, Florida. In his speech, Lyon noted "incredible challenges" facing the country, including the ongoing war in Afghanistan, which entered its 18th year in 2018, as well as political divisions and potential threats to the U.S. economy. "I remain convinced that you, a highly educated generation of student veterans, are the solution that our country desperately needs," Lyon said. He called on student veterans to start a "second service," promote "dignity, humanity and civility" and bridge divides by "reaching out to those different from you, with different life experiences."

Space-A Travel Opens to 100% Disabled Vets

A new change contained in the 2019 defense bill now allows 100 percent disabled veterans to travel Space-Available aboard military and military-contract flights within the continental United States, Alaska, Hawaii and U.S. territories. According to this article, the disabled veterans must possess a Defense Department ID Card (DD Form 2765) in order to not only fly Space-A but to access military installations. The rule change halfway accomplishes Resolution 419 from the 112th VFW National Convention; only halfway because dependents are not eligible to accompany them. The article also states disabled vets have limited destinations, whereas other Category 6 travelers (military retirees) have worldwide eligibility. That discrepancy will be addressed.

Senators want answers on unspent VA suicide prevention funds

A group of 21 Senate Democrats has asked the Department of Veterans Affairs to explain why it spent just $57,000 of $6.2 million budgeted for paid media advertising campaigns directed at suicide prevention in fiscal 2018, a deficiency they called "appalling" for its lack of oversight. The lawmakers, led by Senate Veterans Affairs Committee ranking member Sen. Jon Tester of Montana, demanded a full accounting of the $17.7 million budgeted by VA for suicide prevention outreach, which includes both paid advertising such as radio spots, billboards and digital ads, as well as unpaid outreach such as public service announcements, social media and the VA's own Crisis Line website. Veteran unemployment increased in December — but there's still good news

Military Times In December, 3.6 percent of post-9/11 veterans and 3.2 percent of all veterans were unemployed — up slightly from 3.4 and 3.1 percent, respectively, in November. Experts warn against putting too much stock in the monthly figures and recommend instead tracking larger trends. Bureau of Labor Statistics figures show an annual average unemployment rate of 3.8 percent for the youngest generation of veterans, on par with nonveterans. For veterans overall, the 2018 rate also dropped to 3.5 percent from 3.7 the previous year. READ MORE

Coast Guard retirees among those struggling to make ends meet amid shutdown

WBUR-FM Retired members of the United States Coast Guard may not receive their monthly retirement checks if the government shutdown drags on, the Department of Homeland Security tells On Point. The veterans are the latest group of people suffering the impact as the shutdown drags on. From roughly 800,000 federal workers facing pay freezes, to millions of Americans anticipating food stamp interruptions, the effects are piling up. National parks in disarray, more TSA workers calling out sick and a potential delay in tax refunds are also on the horizon. READ MORE

Opt-ins to the Defense Department's new blended retirement system (BRS) fell as much as two-thirds below projections for active-duty and reserve component forces. Near-final tallies of opt-in decisions for BRS (through Dec. 17) show only 280,000 active-duty members and just over 72,000 reserve component personnel chose to shift out of the previous High-3 plan. VA secretary on GI Bill problems:
'We owe you every penny that you've earned'

Military Times Veterans Affairs Secretary Robert Wilkie told a large gathering of student veterans that his No. 1 priority for the VA in 2019 is quality customer service. That's why the VA will correct inaccurate payments made to thousands of student veterans last fall. Stymied by technical problems, the department has been giving students the wrong housing stipend amounts for months and continues to do so — long after the Aug. 1 deadline Congress gave VA to calculate housing stipends under revised rules. "The bottom line is: We owe you every penny that you've earned. That is what the nation has promised you, and that is what you deserve," Wilkie said, addressing some 2,300 student veterans attending the annual Student Veterans of America National Conference via livestream, after his plans to attend in-person were canceled at the last minute because of travel restrictions amid the government shutdown. Military hopes 3-D printing bones can help combat veterans' injuries

Fox News Dr. John Szivek, who runs the University of Arizona Orthopaedic Research Lab, said the lab received a $2 million grant from the Department of Defense to create 3-D bone printing to help military personnel. "We could regenerate their bone by 3-D printing a scaffold that's specific to that bone and that patient and then filling it with stem cells from that patient, adult stem cells," Szivek explained. "Surgeons in the military would try to treat military personnel with blast injuries, in particular. Those injuries usually cause massive bone loss and unfortunately, in many cases, they're currently amputating military personnel who have those types of injuries. But in this way, they could regrow the bone for that person and they could continue their service in the military." READ MORE

Topics of discussion ranged from some of the technologies Express Scripts is developing, such as an automated kiosk that will be able to fill routine prescriptions without the need for an in-person pharmacist, improved electronic health records interface that gives health care providers a more comprehensive view of the medications that they are prescribing to patients, and legislative priorities for the 2020 National Defense Authorization Act, such as pharmacy fee increases and future policy initiatives that will better serve TRICARE beneficiaries. Blue Water Healthcare Act Will Resurface

Incoming House Committee on Veterans Affairs Chairman Mark Takano, D-Calif., promised in a bipartisan Dec. 20 press conference that the Blue Water Navy Vietnam Veterans Act will resurface early when the 116th Congress begins Jan. 3. The act is a top priority of the Republican he is replacing as chairman of the committee, Dr. Phil Roe of Tennessee. Takano said the measure, which affects some 90,000 Vietnam War veterans exposed to the toxic defoliant Agent Orange who served on surface ships during the war, will also be high on his agenda. The measure was blocked on Dec. 10 primarily by two senators who objected, one on the basis of cost and the other who questioned the science. The act passed the House by a 382-0 vote last June.

Support HR 203 and HR 299, Blue Water Navy Vietnam Veterans Act of 2019

On January 3, 2019, House Veterans' Affairs Committee Ranking Member, Dr. Phil Roe (TN), introduced H.R. 203, the Blue Water Navy Vietnam Veterans Act of 2019. On January 8, 2019, House

Veterans' Affairs Committee Chairman, Mark Takano (CA), introduced H.R. 299, the Blue Water Navy Vietnam Veterans Act of 2019.

Nearly identical legislation was approved in the House last year by a vote of 382 to 0. Unfortunately, the legislation was not approved by the Senate so it must be approved again by the new 116th Congress.

Both bills would expand the presumptions for service connection related to exposure to herbicides containing dioxin, including Agent Orange, to veterans who served in the territorial seas of the Republic of Vietnam during the Vietnam War.

Veterans who served on ships in the waters off shore of Vietnam are arbitrarily and unjustly denied benefits of the presumption of exposure, and thereby are ineligible for presumption of service connection for herbicide-related disabilities. These bills would correct that injustice.

DAV strongly supports H.R. 203 and H.R. 299 and both bills are in accord with DAV Resolution No. 033.

Please use the prepared electronic letter or draft your own to urge your Representative to support and cosponsor H.R. 203 and H.R. 299. As always, we appreciate your support for DAV and your grassroots activism in participating in DAV CAN. Thank you for all you do for America's veterans and their families.

Lawmakers reintroduce legislation to help Blue Water Navy veterans

Connecting Vets In the first week of the new year, lawmakers reintroduced a bill that would clarify toxic exposure definitions, allowing Blue Water Navy veterans to receive the same benefits from the Department of Veterans Affairs as their counterparts who served in Vietnam on the ground. In June of last year, the House voted 382-0 to grant benefits to Blue Water Navy veterans, but in a surprise to many, a senator objected to it, stalling the bill's progress. For years, those who served on Navy ships during Vietnam and were exposed to toxic chemical exposures faced challenges accessing certain healthcare and benefits; H.R. 203 could change that. "The fact that politics got in the way of our duty to care for veterans affected by toxic exposure is a disservice to the 90,000 Navy veterans who served in the coastal waters of Vietnam," said House Veterans Affairs Committee chairman Mark Takano, D-Calif. Marine Pens Novels

Marine Reservist Lance Cpl. David Roach spent six years learning infantry tactics, machine gunnery, bulk fuels and heavy equipment while serving in the Marine Corps from 2002-2008. He uses his experiences to add to the realism behind the fantasy of his characters in his five-novel Vikings series called 'Marauder'. His books also reflect his military experience because he does not shy away from dark humor, cursing or the brutality of war. Roach started with self-publishing his first few novels but after a positive review from a professor of Norse archaeology, he picked up a publisher. Roach's books are available on Amazon.com at www.amazon.com -- search for the author D.W. Roach.

American Legion Distributes Family Assistance Grants

Through The American Legion's National Emergency Fund (NEF), Temporary Financial Assistance (TFA) and Operation Comfort Warriors (OCW) program, military and veterans' families are assisted following the aftermath of natural disasters, during times of financial need, and when recovering from various wounds and illnesses. In 2018 alone, these three American Legion programs provided more than $737,350 in assistance. TFA awarded $221,705 in cash grants, benefiting 364 minor children of 174 veterans. The grants help eligible veterans, with minor children, meet the cost of shelter, utilities, food, clothing and medical expenses. To support these efforts through an online donation, visit the American Legion website at www.legion.org/donate.
